I didn't know Aunt Pat growing up since we lived in Michigan, but we re-connected in the early 1990's on America Online and found we had a shared interest in this new thing called the internet. She knew I was stationed in Orlando at one time and would send me news clippings of the base. The last one was a big pile of rubble of what once was Navy Nuclear Power School that was being commercially redeveloped. I'm glad I got a chance to see her and Cindy a couple years ago.
