Walter Guy posted:

She was so compassionate for others hurting or in need. Last year a man was struck by a car while leaving the entrance of Publix. We were loading our van and when she saw this man hit the ground she went over to him to pray for him. Everyone else is just standing around; but she, being confined to a wheelchair, was doing something. She wanted to lay hands on him, but if she bent over to do that she would have fallen out of her wheelchair, so she held her hand over him and prayed.
